Mirror, Mirror,
Who's that girl I see?
She looks so familar to me.

Shes the girl that people speak of,
about, and to.

They see her smile and pretty blonde hair,
but the thing is,
they look past her despair.

The side people don't see,
the side where she cries for help
as shes drowning,
She reaches as the air escapes her lungs,
as she sinks by her surroundings.

Nobody reaches in to grab her hand;
Nobody to save her,
Nobody to take her to land.

She kicks her legs,
and fights the water,
but slowly she sinks down farther.

People don't see this girl,
whoose drowning in her own tears.

That is the side people don't see,
the side people fear.

I'm ready to swim.
